

Ruth MacPete

Dr. Ruth MacPete, aka The Pet Vet, has appeared as a veterinary correspondent on numerous radio and television shows around the country, including frequent appearances on the Emmy Award-winning hit show The Doctors, Good Morning America, Fox & Friends and the Weather Channel's show America's Morning Headquarters. In addition to her television appearances, she has written about cats and cat health for various magazines such as Cat Fancy, Kittens USA, Fetch!, Pet Business and recently published her first children's book Lisette the Vet. She is a featured blogger for Pet Health Network and can often be seen lecturing at national veterinary conferences and consumer pet shows. She has worked in private practice and in shelter medicine for years and also volunteers her time regularly with several local animal rescue groups. Dr. MacPete believes that through education and awareness of pet health-care, we can improve the lives of animals everywhere. She lives in California with her human family, three cats, one dog, and a guinea pig. To learn more about Dr. MacPete go to: www.DrRuthPetVet.com.